MAKING OPPORTUNITIES KNOCK ON YOUR DOOR

Gateway for young job seekers in the garment sector

WANTED MALE COOK

With experience in Eastern and Western Dishes for an expatriate house in Colombo.

Contact: 0773427371

There are many youngsters throughout the country who are seeking jobs after having finished their university education or completing their G.C.E. O/L and G.C.E. A/L. The garment sector of the country makes a substantial contribution towards the national income by providing an effective solution to the existing unemployment issue.

In the garment sector Island wide, there are a large number of garment factories which provide jobs to thousands of young men and women. A great number of employment opportunities are available for Work study Officers, Quality Controllers, Merchandisers, Production Supervisors, Quality Supervisors, Pattern makers and in the Management training field of the industry but unfortunately many young people do not know about this and the right path to gain access to this well paid job market.

Most young people are reluctant to get a productive vocational training after getting through the stages of their G.C.E. O/L and G.C.E. A/L and some of them even after receiving their degree. Education qualifications alone cannot find you a job.

One reason for this has been the fact that some institutes just award young trainees with a certificate without giving them a proper job oriented training based on correct guidance.

Today acquiring job skill has become as important as receiving academic education. Decimal Garment & Technology now offers the opportunity to gain job qualifications in the apparel industry up to NVQ Degree (National Vocational Qualifications)

Decimal Institute has earned a great reputation over the past 12 years for assessing jobs for each trainee in the industry after successful completion of its theoretical and practical training programme.

If you are interested in getting a lucrative job in the globally expanding garment industry, you can now join Decimal Institute and receive widely recognized job skills through our reliable training programme. You can send in an application to the address below. Write the course name on the left of the envelope to Decimal Garment Technology, No. 334, High Level Road, Maharagama. If you wish to have further information on available job opportunities & courses, call our hotlines 077-1775619/011-4900591

Reaching your full potential: Overcoming fear

Each of us has untapped potential. When this potential is embraced and used, it can have a powerful impact on our lives.

Think about a 2%, 5%, 10% shift in how we are living our lives at home, school, work and play. Small shifts and changes can powerfully impact our lives. But what gets in our way? What obstacles must we overcome? One obstacle for people is fear, and fear can be limiting at best and paralyzing at worst.

My family and I went camping over the spring break holidays. We camped at a beautiful State Park - Falls Creek Falls - in Tennessee. It is a wonderful place to visit and explore with breathtaking views, hiking trails, and waterfalls. Some of the hiking trails have suspension bridges connecting the trails over vast gorges, some bridges being more than 100 ft. high. Like the one in the Indiana Jones movie. As my wife, two boys and I approached a very long bridge suspended at least 100 ft. high, my oldest son quickly took off across the bridge and yelled for the rest of us to join him.

As I approached the bridge, while he was crossing, I yelled out to him the typical parent concerns - Be careful! Hang onto the rails! Walk slow! If the bridge breaks... What was I thinking? What was I feeling?

I became acutely aware of an enormous amount of fear for him, and fear in me while I was crossing this high bridge. When he got to the other side, he turned, waved and yelled, "Come On Dad!". I walked slowly across the bridge noticing an incredible amount of fear and runaway thinking happening with me, which had me considering not going forward. My son was on the other side and I had a choice, to let the fear stop me or not.

As I walked across the bridge the fear increased profoundly inside of me until I got to the other side. Once I was over the bridge, my son and I high-fived and walked back across the bridge. As we walked back across I experienced no fear. What happened to the fear?

That experience highlighted this point to me. That there are times in our lives when we want to do something - be a better student, be a better parent, improve our personal or work lives, improve ourselves athletically - but fear can creep up inside of us and we become unsure of ourselves. Unsure if we can achieve - "getting to the other side". Most of the fear that stops us from achieving what we want or need to do to improve our lives, is nothing more than self limiting beliefs.

If we will just take the risk, take the appropriate steps and embrace our fear(s) we can meet our goals. sideroad.com
